

Tell a story about a day you spent in a magical, candy-filled world.

Use Point Form on the Right Column

Start Strong: Begin story with an exciting opening to grab your reader's attention.

Show, Don't Tell: Use descriptive words and details to help your reader see, hear, and feel what's happening in your story.

Order: Beginning, middle and ending. Organize your events in the order they happen, so your story is easy to follow.

Share Feelings: Explain how you and your characters feel to make your story more interesting. Readers need to feel the emotions.

Wrap It Up: End your story with a sentence that sums up what happened and leaves your reader satisfied.
