

Asking the Right Questions:

Journalists and reporters have to ask questions to write their news. For each of the situations below, determine what questions you would ask:

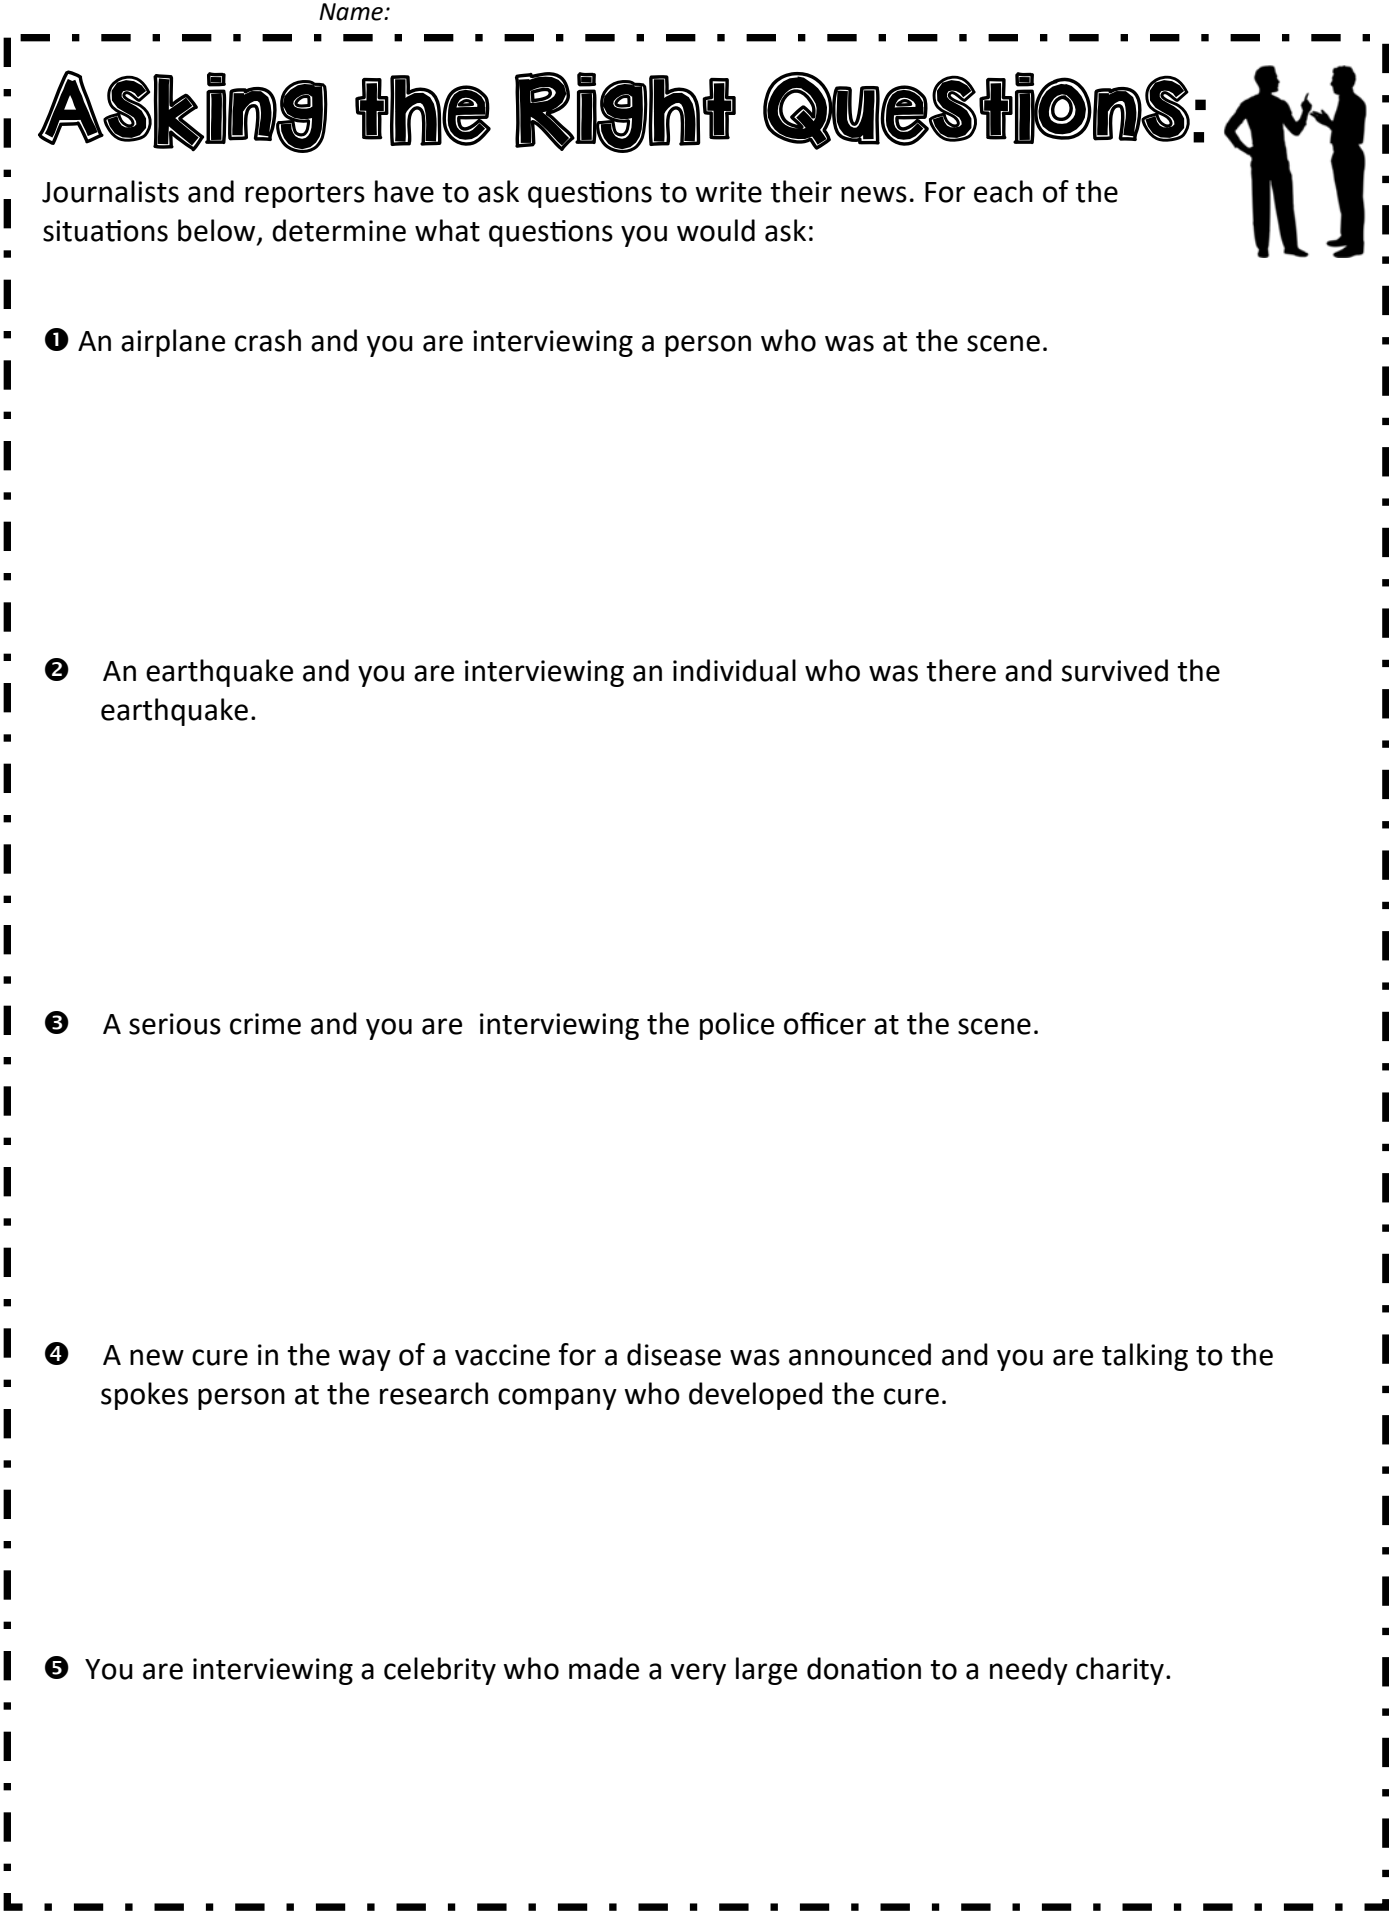

- 1 An airplane crash and you are interviewing a person who was at the scene.
- 2 An earthquake and you are interviewing an individual who was there and survived the earthquake.
- 3 A serious crime and you are interviewing the police officer at the scene.
- 4 A new cure in the way of a vaccine for a disease was announced and you are talking to the spokes person at the research company who developed the cure.
- 5 You are interviewing a celebrity who made a very large donation to a needy charity.

Asking the Right Questions:

Journalists and reporters have to ask questions to write their news. For each of the situations below, determine what questions you would ask:

- 1 An airplane crash and you are interviewing a person who was at the scene.
- 2 An earthquake and you are interviewing an individual who was there and survived the earthquake.
- 3 A serious crime and you are interviewing the police officer at the scene.
- 4 A new cure in the way of a vaccine for a disease was announced and you are talking to the spokes person at the research company who developed the cure.
- 5 You are interviewing a celebrity who made a very large donation to a needy charity.

Asking the Right Questions:

Journalists and reporters have to ask questions to write their news. For each of the situations below, determine what questions you would ask:

- 1 An airplane crash and you are interviewing a person who was at the scene.
- 2 An earthquake and you are interviewing an individual who was there and survived the earthquake.
- 3 A serious crime and you are interviewing the police officer at the scene.
- 4 A new cure in the way of a vaccine for a disease was announced and you are talking to the spokes person at the research company who developed the cure.
- 5 You are interviewing a celebrity who made a very large donation to a needy charity.

- # Asking the Right Questions:
- Journalists and reporters have to ask questions to write their news. For each of the situations below, determine what questions you would ask:
-
- 1 An airplane crash and you are interviewing a person who was at the scene.
 - 2 An earthquake and you are interviewing an individual who was there and survived the earthquake.
 - 3 A serious crime and you are interviewing the police officer at the scene.
 - 4 A new cure in the way of a vaccine for a disease was announced and you are talking to the spokes person at the research company who developed the cure.
 - 5 You are interviewing a celebrity who made a very large donation to a needy charity.